The 1st San Juan Spartan

Part II by Dick Cowan

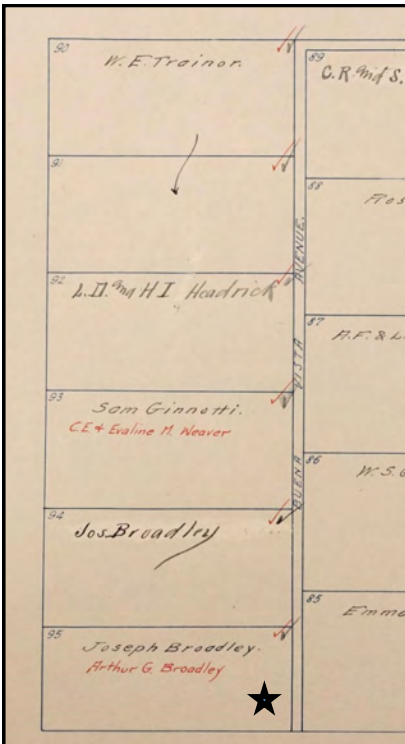

Well, we in the press have to publicly correct our errors, so we begin with reporting that the 1st San Juan High graduate, Dorothy Jerauld, does have a marker on her gravesite. We were previously directed to the wrong wall at Mt. Vernon Cemetery. At the time of her death, Dorothy was going by her 2nd married name, McNabb.

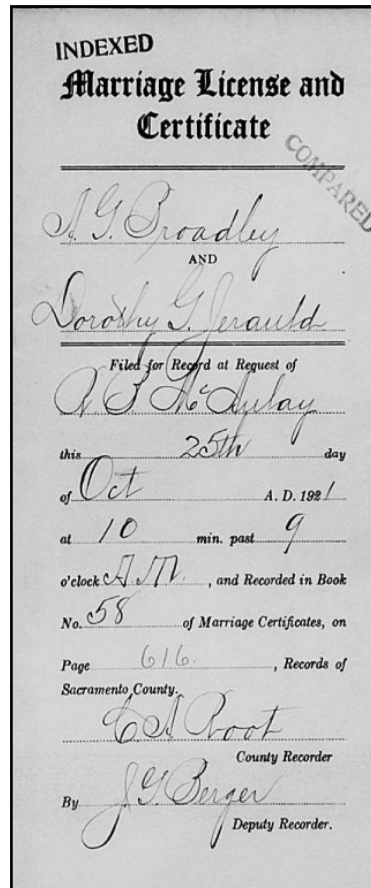

Bronze marker on Dorothy's crypt at Mt. Vernon

The "pretty little bungalow" built for Dorothy and her first husband, Arthur Broadley, on Buena Vista Avenue is sadly long gone. A 1921 parcel map (below) shows the lot in the lower left corner transferred to Arthur from his father. We confirmed with a descendent that the bungalow had been torn down for a newer house.

Madison Ave. would be at the top of this 1921 map today

Happily, we heard from Jack Dozier, class of 1962, who is probably Dorothy's closest living relative. He is a first cousin twice removed. (Dorothy's father is the brother of Jack's great grandmother). He supplied an image of Dorothy's wedding license for her marriage to Arthur Broadley. He also reports that Arthur attended San Juan with Dorothy in 1913-14, but did not stay to graduate.

Instead, he joined the Army and served in France as a mechanic during WWI. We'll follow his story in a later issue.

What did Dorothy do in her adult life? Her job with the State of California moved her to Oakland and then back to Sacramento with second husband, Marvin McNabb, '27. Later, she worked for the federal government at McClellan Field and finished her career at Stead Air Force Base outside Reno as a purchasing agent.

Dorothy's life outside working hours and after retirement is easy to follow. As in her youth, Dorothy was well covered by the newspaper society columns. The Folsom Telegraph covered the Orangevale and Fair Oaks area, and Dorothy appears often in the paper, including in a few photos. The photo to the left is the first one we have been able to find of Dorothy.

She served as a Grand Noble IOOF of the Rebecca Lodge, as Publicity Chair of the Folsom Garden Club and she was a member of the Orangevale Women's Club.

San Juan's 1st alumna led a full life and kept her ties to the local area. We salute you, Dorothy!

More on San Juan's Land Acquisition

by Dick Cowan

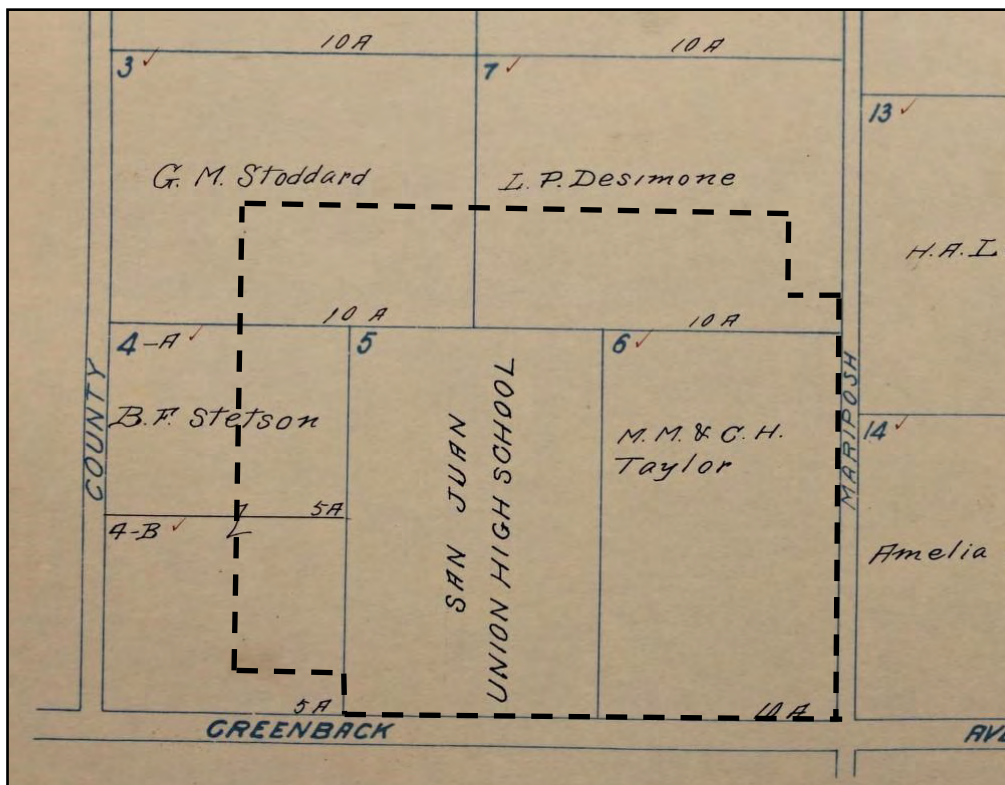

Larry Fritz, '73 came across a 1925 county parcel map that shows the original 10 acre parcel donated by W. A. Trainor for San Juan Union High School. Trainor was a developer who coined the name, "Citrus Heights", for his subdivisions. The fact that he donated a sizable amount of land for the school is why residents voted to locate San Juan where it is today, rather than a competing site in Fair Oaks.

To the right of the San Juan parcel is a 10 acre parcel owned by M. M. and C. H. Taylor. In the April, 2023 edition, we reported that the Taylors gave up their house so a football stadium could be built next to the school. But it wasn't just a house that the Taylors gave up for the stadium. The map shows that they gave up their entire 10 acre property for the school.

Martin M. Taylor must have known that San Juan would outgrow it's original 10 acre lot. As reported on in the July, 2023 edition, he purchased another 10 acre lot off of Mariposa Avenue, south of Greenback, and built a second home on that lot.

San Juan most likely acquired the Taylor parcel in phases, as some of it would have been needed for B Hall and the Auditorium that were built in 1939. The stadium was constructed in about 1952, which is when the Patterson family purchased the Taylor house and moved it to its' present location on Patterson Lane.

An interesting side note: longtime San Juan Librarian, Phebe Cale, rented a room from the Taylors and lived there for many years. In her memoirs, Phebe tells how she took a sabbatical in the early '50s and went to Hawaii for several months. When she left, the Taylor house was still in its' original location. When she returned, the house was gone. She was unaware of what had happened until she returned. What a surprise!

San Juan eventually outgrew both 10 acre parcels and acquired portions of other surrounding properties. According to the Sacramento County Assessor's Map, the school presently occupies 33.5 acres.

Above: The Martin M. Taylor home, originally located at Greenback and Mariposa, was moved to build McArthur Field in 1952.

Meet our District Trustee Manuel Perez

The San Juan District is now required to elect its Board of Trustees from specific Trustee Areas. San Juan High School falls into Area 7, served by newly elected Trustee Manuel Perez. SJAA President Larry Fritz and Newsletter Editor Dick Cowan sat down to ask Trustee Perez about his views.

Tell us about yourself. Well, I attended Encina High, and my wife and two adult sons attended Mesa Verde High. My daughter is now at Sylvan and will attend Mesa. I am a teamster truck driver for Coca Cola. I volunteer with the Marysville Police Department. My wife and I have always been very close to our kids' schools, and I decided to run for the School Board to work on school site safety and parental involvement in decisions affecting their children.

What did you learn running for the Board? I had run once for Citrus Heights City Council, so I knew what to expect somewhat. As I knocked on doors campaigning, many older voters said "Oh, my kids are all grown up, it doesn't matter who is on the Board." I reminded them that the local school test scores and reputations are a huge factor in their home value. If they planned to sell their homes later, the schools matter. I also decided I would not accept campaign funds from the teachers' union, which seemed like a conflict of interest to me.

What came as a surprise after you were elected? The number of items that come to us that are strictly financial in nature. I get it that the money is necessary, but I am surprised how little time we have for the kids and learning issues. I want to get along with everyone, even if I disagree with them. The man who ran against me for the Board seat is on a district committee.

I could have removed him after I was elected, but I felt that he was doing good work, so I didn't. He is good for the kids, so he's good for me too.

Is being a Trustee a big time commitment? Oh yes. The packet of information we have to study for each Board meeting is about 4 inches thick. And it is all important. I highlight things I want to understand better. We have been adopting District policies and I asked our attorney to advise us on whether the language in several policies was driven by law or at our discretion. I didn't agree with some policy language but would accept it, if required by law. She will bring those policy language answers back to our next Board meeting.

Thank you for serving as a Trustee and please let us know how we can help you. I will turn that around, call me anytime I can help you.

David Terwilliger

Been There Done That

By Bob Nielsen '58

Fisherman, Love at first sight, Pilot, Teacher, Yearbook Advisor, Stained Glass Artist, Coach, Banker, Father, Vice Principal, Principal, Counselor, and College Prof. Dave Terwilliger stands 6'5" tall.

His wrists are the size of an average man's calf, his hands the size of a catcher's glove. No wonder he is often called Bear. Mr. T and Twig also work. If you got a hug in anger, you'd probably have a lot of cracked ribs. The Bear is slow to anger, but he's been there. A punch would take you out. Mostly, he's a gentle giant, with hugs and smiles for those he cares about. He always cared for his students. That's why San Juan was so lucky to have him serve in so many roles.

Dave Terwilliger

David was not welcomed at San Juan when he first showed up. He was assigned to the English department. The department chairman was Eda Silverthorne. She had her heart set on a drama teacher to round out her diverse department. What she got was a coach. She made her disappointment very clear to Dave. He made every effort to fit in. San Juan got a dedicated coach in Dave, freshman football, freshman basketball, JV girls' basketball, girls' soccer, boys' soccer. The end of the story is heartwarming.

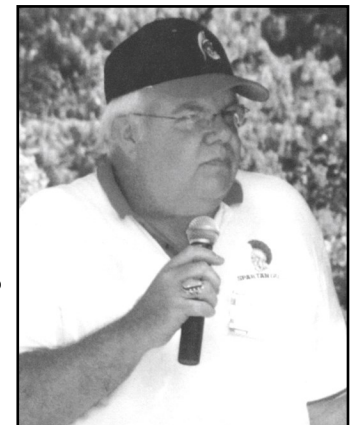

Dave near the start of his career at San Juan

San Juan often suffered declining enrollment and many teachers got pink slipped. Dave and Linda Jacoby were on the list. Two outstanding teachers that San Juan could not afford to lose. Eda made the decision to retire so that Dave and Linda would be saved.

Dave and some of his JV soccer team

When Dave served at principal of San Juan High School, it was a difficult job. The Superintendent at the district office told him to work smart. How do you work smart without resources? Many of the students couldn't speak English. The student population was always changing. The number of freshmen who stayed to graduate was very small.

Dave as principal in 2005

Dave learned to fly at Rock Springs, Wyoming, in 1979 while he was working at his father's bank. Banking was not for Dave. He and his family moved back to Citrus Heights. This time he was welcomed back to San Juan. Lots of coaching awaited him. Dave was a regular at before-school basketball. Teachers and students played very aggressive games. The most aggressive player was Norm Allen, the chemistry teacher. No one got away without being bruised or broken. Dave got a broken finger. (cont.)

Dave retired in 2008. Retirement meant working for CSU Sacramento, helping student teachers. Dave knew what good teachers look like. Dave's view: teachers should treat their students like they were their own children. Be honest and firm but love them. Give of yourself. Teaching is not about the teacher. It is about the students. Listen to your students. You might be amazed by what you learn.

Former San Juan faculty members and friends meet every Tuesday for breakfast. Dave is a regular. Everyone has a story. We like to tell stories about San Juan, talk about books we are reading, what's wrong with the world, trials and tribulations of old age and our recalcitrant children. Bottom line, with friends like Dave, San Juan is a great place to be from.

Readers Respond to the Black Uniform Question We Asked

"When the game started, Rio Vista was wearing white and we (San Juan) were wearing black and orange. It was like watching a game with Roseville High in the old days. I was so upset and embarrassed for my San Juan team. I hope this color switch will not be a common occurrence." Jerry Still, class of '60

"No way! San Juan colors are red and white! It's horrible. The spartan head has been changed too. My goodness, keep tradition." Carolyn Coburn, class of '69

SJAA Scholarship Program

Editor's note: We are very proud and excited to have two recent San Juan graduates, Aime Millan, class of 2013 and Jocelyn Millan, class of 2014, join the SJAA team. Yes, they are sisters. And they have taken on the SJAA Scholarship Program. So far, they have evaluated scholarship applications from many San Juan seniors. They are now in the process of selecting which applicants will receive a scholarship. Here is a little bit about Aime and Jocelyn.

Aime: I received an SJAA scholarship the year that I graduated from San Juan, so I am honored to now serve as the Scholarship Co-Chair. I have a passion for International Relations and Spanish, which I studied at UC Davis, earning a bachelor's degree. I then returned to San Juan to work as a College-Career Technician and Spanish substitute teacher. I now teach in the Washington Unified School District.

Jocelyn: After graduating from San Juan, I studied Psychology and Spanish at UC Davis, and earned a bachelor's degree.

Like my sister, I returned to San Juan as a College-Career

Technician, while also working on a master's degree in school counseling. I am now privileged to serve as a high school counselor for the San Juan Unified School District. With my Co-Chair, Aime, I look forward to supporting the next generation of San Juan scholars.

San Juan Alum Donates 2.2 Acres to Citrus Heights

Reprinted from the Citrus Heights Sentinel
by Mike Hazlip

More than two acres of wooded land along Sylvan Road are set to become a park after the landowner donated the property to the city for that purpose.

The landowner, Robert Coronado, approached Councilman Tim Schaefer more than a year ago with the idea, Schaefer said in comments during a Dec. 14, 2023, council meeting. He described Coronado as “a great human being” for his generosity.

In public comments during the meeting, Coronado said his grandparents, Manuel and Francisca Coronado, whom he said homesteaded a portion of the property in the 1920s after immigrating from Mexico.

“The property ties in well with the city’s General Plan goal of preserving and protecting open space, which in turn helps reduce the effects of climate change,” Coronado said. He also indicated the future park will be named “Coronado Park” in honor of his family’s legacy.

The 2.2 acres of land donated to the city by Robert Coronado, class of '74, Image credit Google Maps

The properties are located at 7500 Coronado Ln., which fronts Sylvan Road to the west and is adjacent to Heights Church in the north. Coronado said he purchased the land from the Heights Church to prevent it from becoming a parking lot, noting that some of the trees on the property are more than a century old.

Mayor Bret Daniels also thanked Coronado for his gift to the city. “This kind of thing hardly ever happens and your graciousness to us is extremely appreciated. Thank you very much, and go Spartans,” Daniels said to the fellow San Juan alumni.

A staff report from the city said the land transfer was proposed as a gift to the city, “without any compensation,” with a restriction only that the area be used as a “park, open space, community garden, or the like.”

Spartans are Everywhere!

You never know where you'll find San Juan Alumni. Rebecca Potts, class of 1977, lives in Ka'a'awa, a town of about 1,300 on the island of Oahu, Hawaii. She was furnishing her home with second-hand finds when she saw a post on Facebook for a cute little cabinet. She made arrangements with the local seller, Julie, to pick it up. When Rebecca picked up the cabinet, she learned that Julie's husband, Ron, was from Citrus Heights. Unbelievable, she thought. Then she learned that Ron is a San Juan alum, class of 1985. Rebecca, Julie and Ron have since become friends.

Rebecca Potts, '77

While shopping in a CVS Pharmacy in Las Vegas, James Holben, class of 1971, started a conversation with a sales clerk. The clerk said she had moved to Vegas from California. "Where in California?" James asked. The clerk said, "Citrus Heights". So James asked, "what high school?" When she replied, "San Juan", James said, "go Spartans!" According to James, "you should have seen the smile and the tear in her eye."

James Holben, '71

Debbie Wadsworth Thompson, class of 1971, was at her grandson's Casa Roble football game. A woman sitting behind Debbie mentioned that her mom was from the class of '73 and was going to her 50th reunion that Saturday. Debbie knew that her sister, Diane, San Juan class of 1973, was going to her 50th reunion that same day. So Debbie turned around and asked her if her mom was a Spartan. The woman said, "no, she's a Ram, but my dad is a Spartan, class of '74. His name is Randy Virtue." While not uncommon to find a Spartan the next town over, Debbie says, "I'm so happy when I come across one."

Joanne Martin, class of 1950, lives in San Miguel de Allende, Mexico. She took a class from Kate Mills to learn how to make Spirit Dolls. I asked where she was from in California. She said, "Citrus Heights." I asked what High School she attended..... of course San Juan. Who would have thought that this small town in Mexico claims two Spartans! They were both astonished.

San Juan Unified Coach Makes a Difference

San Juan Unified School District Newsletter

Positivity is a guiding force for Chris Horner (San Juan class of 1992). Chris is the head football coach for Casa Roble High School and winner of the Sacramento Bee's 2023 Football Coach of the Year award. His motto, "negativity wins 100 percent of the time," encapsulates how he inspires students to push past the negativity to become the best they can be.

Chris Horner, class of '92

"He goes above and beyond," said Casa Roble teacher and athletic director, Aaron Marlette. According to Marlette, Horner works hard to ensure that student athletes feel supported on and off the field. "Because there is a relationship established, I think the kids work extremely hard for him," he said.

Bryan McElroy, whom Horner affectionately refers to as "B-Mac," is a 12th-grade student and football player at Casa Roble. McElroy expressed gratitude for the positive influence Horner has had on his life. "He'll actually help you, like, off the field," McElroy said. "He'll take extra time out of his day to make sure you actually understand something."

As a San Juan High School alumnus, father of two Casa Roble students and husband to a teacher at Oakview Community Elementary School, Horner's roots in the district run deep. The walls of his classroom proudly display memorabilia from over 20 years of work as a teacher and coach at Casa Roble.

Nestled between team photos and pictures of his family is a pennant from the Ram's 2023 San Joaquin Section championship win.

This achievement was a personal milestone for Horner, who watched live as his son caught the winning two-point conversion.

Horner is not done winning yet. When looking to the future, he said he wants to continue growing the athletics program at Casa Roble and expanding its positive influence on the community.

'Sixteen Candles' actress on the love she shared with her dad

Wall Street Journal- 02-06-2024

Molly Ringwald, 55, is an actor, writer and singer who starred in "Sixteen Candles," "The Breakfast Club" and "Pretty in Pink." More recently, she was in TV's "Riverdale" and "Dahmer." She currently co-stars in FX's "Feud: Capote vs. the Swans." She spoke with Marc Myers.

Growing up with a musician father, Bob Ringwald (SJ Class of 1960) who was blind definitely helped shape me. I performed with him from an early age, and I always tried to describe the world to him concisely and colorfully. Our relationship sharpened my attention to detail and my writing ability. Acting helped Molly Ringwald break out of her shell. "Performing let me express myself in ways I couldn't in everyday life".
